ULSTER MAY COME INTO FREE STATE

Belfast Sees Prospect of Restoration of Order in South.

MAY SAVE TERRITORY

Passage of Military Courts Bill by Dublin Gives Confidence.

REBELS MUST SURRENDER

Cosgrave Ministry Shies at Truce—De Valera and Lynch Part.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK HERALD. Copyright, 1922, by THE NEW YORK HERALD. New York Herald Bureau, Dublin, Sept. 28.

A reconciliation between Ulster and the Free State is considered highly probable in governmental circles as the result of the firm hand which the Cosgrave Ministry is showing in dealing with the rebels and its rigid adherence to the terms of the Free State treaty in drafting the constitution.

It is reliably reported that the provisional Government has received assurances from highly influential quarters in Belfast that if the disorder in the south is quelled under the military courts bill, which was adopted today, and if connection with England is maintained as set forth in the present draft of the constitution, weighty pressure will be brought to bear to prevent the northern Parliament exercising its right of contracting out of the Free State within thirty days after the final passage of the constitution.

The Cosgrave ministry is not in favor of a truce with the rebels as proposed in Parliament to-night by Deputy Patrick McCartan, who expressed his confidence that the new Government was in the strongest position ever and that it would be futile to end the conflict without conclusively establishing the sovereignty of the elected Government.

Dr. McCartan told THE NEW YORK HERALD correspondent that he was not authorized to present any offer on the side of the rebels, but thought that if only a truce could be arranged the peaceful elements on both sides could arrange for a settlement and the resumption of fighting would be practically impossible. The attitude of the ministry, however, is that a truce can be arranged at any time if the rebels surrender.

What Ulster May Gain.

The Government furthermore is not willing to place in jeopardy reconciliation with Ulster, which certain elements have been fostering for a long time. It is understood that the expense of maintaining a partition Government is one of the chief factors pointing to a reconciliation. If Ulster is contracted out of her territory in Counties Tyrone and Fermanagh.

When the partition was arranged the present six counties were selected because if the whole province of Ulster had been taken the Nationalists would have had a majority in the northern Parliament, and if only the four counties were in the Unionist majority in the Labor would have had a majority in the Unionist majority in the Labor vote and give the Unionists control.

Consequently if it is able to secure favorable terms with the Free State Parliament and extensive local authority that would be preferred to a continuation of the reduced Parliament with the danger of a Labor majority.

Bill Passes, 47 to 15.

DUBLIN, Sept. 28 (Associated Press).—The Irish Parliament to-day adopted the Government's resolution for the establishment of military courts to try persons charged with hindering the restoration of order or endangering public safety. The vote was 47 to 15.

Eamon de Valera and Liam Lynch, his chief of staff, have parted, according to correspondence seized by the Free State forces and read by Gen. Mulcahy, commander of the National army, in the session of the Dail Eireann yesterday.

Venizelos Wishes to Be "Considered as Dead"

PARIS, Sept. 28 (Associated Press).—"I wish to be considered as dead," was the reply of Eleutherios Venizelos to a question as to the part he might play under the new Government in Greece, says the Deauville correspondent of the Petit Parisien.

M. Venizelos maintains impeccable reserve even with his intimate friends. The first news of the Greek revolution and Constantine's abdication came while he was at lunch, and one of his friends could not resist asking: "What would you do if asked to resume office?"

Venizelos merely said: "Take some more hors d'oeuvres," but his voice shook, betraying the depth of his emotion. One had only to look at his face to realize that the vindication of the party leader had not obliterated the sorrow of the patriot.

GREEK SHIPS SAVE 20,000 IN SMYRNA

Take Off Refugees Under the Protection of American Destroyers.

SMYRNA, Sept. 28 (Associated Press).—Ten Greek owned vessels steamed into the harbor to-night under the protection of the American flag and took off 20,000 refugees and victims of the fire. The American navy, under Rear Admiral Bristol, is striving valiantly to save the remainder, who number not less than 40,000.

Admiral Bristol hopes to obtain an extension of the time limit for the evacuation of the last of the outcasts beyond September 30, the date fixed by the Turkish authorities.

Oscar S. Heizer of Corning, Iowa, the American Consul at Constantinople, has arrived here on the destroyer Maalech to administer the Congressional Fund of $200,000 for the relief of nationalized Americans here and in other sections. After making a survey of the needs Mr. Heizer will establish headquarters at Athens.

Wireless messages to American destroyers report that the situation of the refugees at Rodosto, Mitylene, Chios and along the shores of the Sea of Marmora is assuming appalling proportions, demanding the attention of the allied nations. There are 100,000 in the scattered villages along Marmora, 60,000 at Mitylene, 110,000 at Rodosto and nearby towns and many refugees from the interior are expected soon to be staggering into Smyrna.

The United States has taken an active lead in this work of mercy. Its naval officers and sailors, as well as its citizens, are engaged in all these areas ameliorating the deplorable plight of the evicted Christians.

GREEK UPSET LEAVES FRANCE UNCHANGED

Abdication of Constantine Does Not Alter Policy.

PARIS, Sept. 28 (Associated Press).—France's policy in the Near East as laid down in the note she sent to Kemal Pasha jointly with the other Allies has not been modified by the overturn in Greece, it was announced officially after a meeting of the Cabinet this morning. The Cabinet, President Millerand presiding, assembled at Rambouillet and discussed the abdication of King Constantine and the Greek revolutionary movement. After the session the following official announcement was made:

"Premier Poincare explained the situation in Greece and the Near East, and the Cabinet decided that the events in Greece would not have the effect of modifying the decisions France took with the other Allies last Saturday and which were communicated to Mustafa Kemal Pasha."

CONSTANTINE CAPTIVE, IS REPORT; ARMY IN ATHENS

Gen. Pangalos opposed the movement, outwitted the other faction, took possession of the Prefecture of Police, arrested Col. Soutos and finally became masters of the situation, the Royalist troops being led back to their quarters.

The King at first intended to resist the insurrectionary movement, his generals and Prince Nicholas, his brother, advising such a course, but the monarch soon recognized the impossibility of making an effective resistance and the counter-revolutionary preparations were ordered stopped.

The next step was taken by the civilians. The leaders of the Venizelist party went to meet the leaders of the military movement and held a conference at which the organization of a new government and the dynastic question were discussed. Even the question of proclaiming a republic was taken up by the conferees.

The prospects at this writing seem to be that Gen. Nider will undoubtedly be called to the Premiership of the new Government, with former Foreign Minister Carapanos becoming Foreign Minister, unless M. Coromilas should resume this ministry, with ex-Finance Minister Alexander Diomedes again becoming Minister of Finance.

Constantine's abdication came after dramatic scenes, with the Palace surrounded by an angry mob of revolutionists demanding his dethronement.

It was not until the mob threatened to seize the person of the Sovereign that an emissary appeared at a window of the Palace and announced the abdication.

Gen. Papoulas previously had been sent to treat with the revolutionists but, finding his entreaties unavailing, joined their cause himself. The Government then sent a second envoy, but the mob was obdurate, declaring: "We are resolved to dethrone the author of Greece's misery."

When Gen. Papoulas returned to Athens there was a lengthy conference of the King, the Cabinet members, notable of the army and navy, and others. Constantine said that above all he wished to prevent bloodshed and therefore had firmly decided to abdicate.

King Constantine sent to Premier Triantafyllakos the following letter: "The catastrophe in Asia Minor and the danger we run of losing Thrace has strengthened the idea among a section of my subjects that if I continue to remain on the throne it would prevent the friendly Powers from effectively helping Greece."

"If by no means share that view. Nevertheless, seeing that this false idea is leading the country into civil war, and believing that civil strife would constitute a final blow to my country, I have decided to avoid it by sacrificing myself, and I hereby abdicate."

Constantine addressed the following message to the Greek people: "Yielding to the solemnly expressed will of the Greek people I returned to Greece in December, 1920, and resumed my royal duties. I declared then, and took a solemn oath, that I would respectfully observe the articles of the constitution."

"This declaration corresponded both with my private desire and that of the Greek people, as well as the international interests of our country. Within the limits of the constitution I did everything humanly possible for the defense of the interests of the nation."

"To-day regrettable misfortunes have led our country into a critical situation, but Greece, as in so many other instances in the course of her centuries long history, will again overcome her difficulties and will continue on her glorious and brilliant path, provided she faces the danger with a united front and is assisted by her powerful friends."

"As for myself, I am happy that another opportunity has been given me to sacrifice myself once more for Greece, and I shall be still happier when I see my people, whom I have so much loved, surround their new King with perfect concord and lead the fatherland to fresh glory and fresh greatness."

"My sacrifice is slight. I am prepared to fight at the head of the army in the interests of the country if the Greek Government and people should consider such service useful to the fatherland."

"CONSTANTINE."

Why Pretty Teeth

Are shown everywhere today

Look about you. Note how many teeth now glisten. Note how people show them as they never did before.

Millions of people are brushing teeth in a new way. If you don't know the good results, make this free test.

Fight dingy film

One object is to fight the film on teeth—that viscous film you feel. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. Food stains, etc., discolor it, then it forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film.

No ordinary tooth paste effectively combats film. So, under old methods, beautiful teeth were seen less often than today.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Very few people escaped such troubles under old ways of teeth cleaning.

New ways found

Then dental science found two film combatants. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods effective. Then dentists everywhere began to advise their use.

A new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. The name is Pepsodent. In that tooth paste are embodied those two great film combatants.

Five effects

But Pepsodent brings five effects. These are very important. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to constantly neutralize the acids which cause decay.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits on teeth which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

Those are Nature's ever-present tooth-protecting agents. Every use of Pepsodent gives them manifold effect.

Pepsodent also polishes the teeth so film adheres less readily.

You see them now nearly the world over

These glistening teeth are now seen nearly the world over. Careful people of some fifty nations are now using Pepsodent. And those whiter teeth mean safer teeth. They mean a new dental era.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

This test will be a revelation, amazing but delightful. Cut out the coupon so you won't forget.
